EDUCATION IN CRISIS

NO choice

NO freedom

NO democracy

The government has announced plans to force all schools to leave their local council and become academies – whether they want this or not.

They are also planning to remove parents from school governing bodies and to allow all schools to employ unqualified teachers. They want to remove any framework for teacher and support staff national pay and conditions.

None of these things were in the government's election Manifesto or the Queen's Speech.

This is an attack on schools, teachers, parents and governors and is facing huge opposition – in short it is the privatisation of schools.

The real issues

The government is making these proposals when they should be addressing the real problems in education, such as:

- the crisis in teacher recruitment
- funding cuts that will harm children's education
- the huge number of school places that are needed
- the chaos and confusion around primary testing

Join us to defend education from privatisation. All over the country people are voicing their concerns at these plans – we want to build a huge campaign to stop this happening. Please join us.
